

Drew speaks on a broad spectrum of real-life topics that are relevant for kids, teens and adults of all ages and walks of life.

Drew's family has been in New England since 1634. Drew is one of Bridgeport Hospital's "miracle babies" and has always had a zeal for living. "I had a 1% chance of living and being healthy, so to me, every day is a gift." He grew up in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey, graduating from Simsbury (CT) High School and the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

His career took him to Washington DC and Chicago, but his heart was back in his native Connecticut. He founded KEEP IN TOUCH in 1988. He is past president of the CT Valley Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) past chairman of the Better Business Bureau of Connecticut, and current president of the Rockville Downtown Association. He is a seasoned TV, radio, print and online journalist and guest.
